COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course is designed to empower educators with essential emotional intelligence skills and strategies to create a supportive and engaging classroom environment. Emotional intelligence is the ability to understand, use, and manage one's own emotions in positive ways to relieve stress, communicate effectively, empathize with others, overcome challenges and defuse conflict.

This competence has a surprisingly powerful effect on our lives, from our capacity to foster long-term relationships with friends to whether we're able to succeed in school.

Managing our emotions as well as understanding others is vital when interacting within both the professional day-to-day with colleagues, students, parents and society.

Since 2020 we have been facing a global pandemic which caused a huge intrusion in all relationships. And between teachers and students too. While teaching was already a challenging profession, COVID-19 has pushed aside some of the heartwarming, relational positives of teaching and replaced them with stress and e-learning teaching.

If armed with emotional skills, teachers are better equipped to create positive classroom relationships, cultivate an engaging learning environment, and support the holistic development of their students.

Through a combination of theoretical insights, practical exercises, and interactive discussions, participants will develop a deep understanding of their own emotional landscape and gain strategies to navigate the emotional landscape of their students effectively.
